Nothing gives me more satisfaction in life than helping others.

One time someone asked me, “How do you make sense of offering so much advice and value for free?”.

To which I replied, “I am getting paid – in ways that money can never buy!”.

You see. Giving help is so easy, yet so rewarding.

Ever since I was young. I've always found great rewards in helping others. I think it was exactly what helped me achieve so much throughout my life. Whether I was assisting my mother at home or my father with some work. I always looked for a way to involve myself.

As I grew up, I kept looking for ways to add value. It made me feel superb and gave me an enhanced understanding of what people need help with.

Look. Apart from getting a great feeling out of helping others. You also gain a deeper understand of that specific thing you're helping out with.

I started noticing that the more I helped somebody, the more I got rewarded. Whenever I take the time to help someone with real estate, sales, speaking or social media. I somehow get better at them as well.

Let me share with you with a quick tip on helping others. If you truly want to help another, let them help you too. Don't be caught up in only giving help and becoming unable to receive help.

Put yourself in environments where others know more about a certain subject. So, you too can receive help. It's a great thing to give and receive – everybody wins.

As I look back though, that has been one of the greatest “secrets” to my success. My focus wasn't about becoming a millionaire. But impacting a million lives.

When you impact a million lives. Becoming a millionaire is just a positive side-effect of that impact.

The #1 regret of the dying.

A nurse who spent numerous years caring for patients during the last weeks of their lives. Routinely asked her patients if they had any regrets. Plus, if there was anything they would do differently if they could roll back the clock.

The nurse noticed that the majority of the replies were actually very common with one another.

The most common regret of all was this:

"I wish I'd had the courage to live a life true to myself, not the life others expected of me."

Of all the regrets, this was by far the most common one. As people realise that their lives are close to the end and are able to look back clearly on it. It's easy to see several dreams left unfulfilled.

Several patients openly shared they did not achieve even a fraction of their dreams. They had to die knowing it was due to the actions they took. Or more often, a case of their inaction.

In the end, this is how most people's life looks like. Go to school, be a good puppy working for some corporate job and keep hoping that 'some day' you'll retire rich.

We only got one life... and that's no way to live life.

You have 2 options. Choose to start chasing your dreams and winning in life. Or close your eyes to reality and stay stuck in the same rut.

Easy pick.

Content piece #3 - IMG_6061 - "if you want more, you have to be willing to give up more"

What are you willing to give up?

This is a question I ask and assess for myself repeatedly.

Truth is... where your focus goes, your energy flows. And your focus cannot be in a million places at the same time.

I gave up several things along my journey in order to become the person I am today.

I gave up being right a long time ago. You simply can't always want to be right and be successful simultaneously. They don't go together.

I gave up on the idea of quitting. Failure becomes impossible for those that don't quit. If I keep moving towards the destination and don't stop. Eventually, I'm going to get there. Sure, there will be bumps and obstacles along the way. But I only fail if I quit.

I gave up certain people on my way to the destination as well. People that had zero ambition, apart from working their comfy 9-5 jobs and drinking their souls into oblivion on the weekends.

"But Carlos I don't want to sacrifice my night life".

None of this is sacrifice. It's just the price you pay to bleed success.

Sacrifice means you get nothing in return. No reward.

Do you know when I was sacrificing?

When I was clocking in working a 9-5 job to make a little ass pimple of a pay check.

Ultimately, it all boils down to what you're willing to give up.

Are you going to give up on what is needed to achieve greatness or are you going to give up on your dreams?

Let me know in the comments below.

Content piece #4 - "your current situation is not your final destination"

The present does not equal the future. [REVISE]

Yesterday you were dead tired after your job. Yesterday you sat in your bedroom and played video games from the time you got back home until the early morning hours.

Yesterday night you had a thought.

You thought, "I am going to change."

It hit you so hard that you could barely close an eye all night long. Your head was full of thoughts and plans.

Something finally clicked. You realized that your current state is nothing else than your making and you can change it if you wish.

Today, you got up as the sun was rising. You went for a morning run and got your body moving. Then, you bought that domain name you've been meaning to buy for so long. So you can start your online business.

Your eyes have changed. Now there is a fire behind them unlike anything you've ever witnessed. You can finally see clearly.

Your transformation happened as you saw the change clearly in your mind. You saw the steps you needed to take. You had a plan. A vision. And you took action.

The ghost of the past has left. Now you're free to shape your future.

They say money doesn't buy happiness.

OK. It just buys anything you want. So, if you want happiness just buy some.

Here are two really great benefits of having money.

1. Money takes care of any problem. You may think it doesn't, but you'd be wrong
2. Money gives you freedom and options

If that's just not enough...

Money buys you a better class of people to spend your time with.

People that are fully on board with your mission. People that aspire for higher, just like you do.
People who want to see you succeed. People that inspire you to reach higher levels.

So, when they tell you money doesn't buy happiness.

Just say, “OK. It just buys anything you want.”

Content piece #7 - IMG_0064 - “if you can conquer yourself you can conquer the world”

Mind and spirit. Align both and everything will become effortless.

Why?

Everything will come to you by power, rather than by force.

Mind and spirit and the two most powerful free tools you have at your fingertips.

Yet it's exactly what most people dislike talking about. People want to ignore this and jump into the fancy tricks, tactics and strategies.

Without a solid mind and spirit combination, you simply cannot go far.

I have coached so many students over the past years.

Those who “won” or became a magnet for success were not necessarily the most skilful people.

They had the best mindset.

If you want to conquer the world. If you want to leave your mark and make an impact.

The first step is to conquer yourself

You know what is more important than money in life?

Having a mission.

There is no way you can be aimless and fulfilled.

At the same time, you cannot be on a mission and be fulfilled too.

If I could impact 1 person's life, I'd be happy... until I impacted 1 person's life.

If I could impact 100 persons' lives, I'd be happy... until I impacted 100 persons' lives.

If I could impact 10,000 persons' lives, I'd be happy... until I impacted 10,000 persons' lives.

That is the beauty of the mission. It never stops.

Content piece #9 - IMG_0062 – Porsche video

I came to the US as an immigrant when I was a little boy. I saw my mum work 2 jobs for only $8.25 an hour to raise 3 kids. Even as a little boy, I could see all the suffering that came along with a shortage of money.

At a young age, I made a commitment to have everything in life that I desired with absolutely no limits.

I promised my father I would become super rich so I could help a lot of people.

I've always been fascinated by sexy cars such as this beauty you see right here. I am not bragging but instead am hopeful that I can inspire each of you to go and fight for your dreams without any self-imposed limitations.

I am living my dream life and I want to share how I did it so all of you can make your dreams a reality.

All my expenses are paid for by passive income that adds up while I sleep. I don't have to work any longer if I choose not to. I have worked my butt off and create multiple flows of income.

What did it take? Years of studying, coaching, trial and error. I lost millions making costly mistakes that would have been the end for anyone. Choose not to learn from your mistakes but learn from others' mistakes. If an immigrant can do it, anyone can.

Don't listen to the naysayers telling you it's hard. Become deaf to them. Listen only to people that are where you want to be.

Let go of your ego. Have humility to learn from people who are ahead of you. My friends today still push me to be even better and create even bigger and more spectacular goals just like they are doing. Find friends that are on the same wavelength as you are.

Content piece #10 - IMG_0057 - “are you giving your best effort?”

“I want to give the best of me, not the rest of me.”

How do I do that every day, in every single way?

Simple.

I follow the OWNER method.

O = Oxygen
W = Water
N = Nutrition
E = Energy
R = Rest

When you take care of yourself, everything will be taken care of.

So, the big question is... how do you take care of yourself?

Apply the OWNER method and maximise your energy.

Anything that you want to accomplish in your life is going to require ENERGY.

It is your duty to maximise your levels of energy on a daily basis.

So that you can absolutely CRUSH your goals like never before.

Understand this and prosper.
